

Personal Comment

616 S. State Rd 415
New Smyrna Beach, FL. 32168

Nov. 22, 2017

Dear FCC,

I would like to start off with the following Question, Why? This might not seem like a good question and for that matter it really isn't, however regarding the current standing on the Net Neutrality Regulations it stands as the best and only question.

The ISP companies are currently doing fine, there is no reason outside of personal gain to remove the NNR (Net Neutrality Regulations) that are currently standing. Why I personally believe this is not because of what is happening but what might happen. Outside of having no regulations on the market place to hold people accountable to, you will be giving the ISP companies basically free reign to do as they please with no control. Giving them the ability to charge for things that would otherwise be seen as extortion.

While Extortion is a very heinous crime, what would be worse would be the violation of our bill of rights. (to be honest it would go against the 1st, and 4th Amendments) To varying degrees of change this would also make it harder for people to get access to the network, walling off people who can't otherwise afford to get it. With today's modern ways of doing things going without the internet or having it throttled/blocked is not a good thing for it hurts the businesses out there trying to start up as well as get people in for employment.

In short I am personally saying don't remove the NNR (Net Neutrality Regulations) for Rescinding these would only end up doing more harm than good.

DO NOT GET RID OF NET NEUTRALITY REGULATIONS

If you can't understand what the people of this county want, why?

Sincerely,

Matthew T. Westfall